The Boston Business Journal Names Treeline, Inc. Among the Area's Best Places to Work
Treeline emerges from a group of 325+ nominees as one of 20 winners in the small business category for 2007

April 26, 2007, Wakefield, Massachusetts: the Boston Business Journal has named Treeline, Inc. among the area's Best Places to Work for 2007. More than 325 companies were nominated - a 40 percent increase over 2006 - and Treeline was ranked among the top 20 in the small business category, which includes firms with 20-100 employees.

The rankings, including the three companies named as the number one Best Place to Work in their size categories, will be counted down at a breakfast event at the Westin Waterfront Hotel on Friday, June 22, at 7:30 a.m. A full list will also appear in a special supplement to the June 22 issue of the Boston Business Journal.

The Treeline team is what makes the firm one of the Best Places to work according to Managing Partner Daniel Fantasia: "I am extremely fortunate to be surrounded by such talented and dedicated individuals. They have helped create a culture that is creative, energetic, and team-focused. For my part, I will continue to cultivate the type of environment in which all team members can achieve success. We are thrilled to be recognized alongside such wonderful companies and look forward to the Best Places to Work event."

This is Treeline's debut appearance on the Boston Business Journal's Best Places to Work list. Just last month, the firm was named among the area's largest executive search firms by the weekly business publication.
